A Year To Remember

Drawings By: A. Yerokhina (Russia)

Herald The Olympics

Up to Snowdonia and down to the fens
We followed the relay across all the Glens
From the Downs in the South, to the Moors of East Riding
We plotted its progress and each nightly abiding
Then came the day it arrived in our town
Tour buses and cars and the rain pouring down
We stood by the railings, flags wet in our hands
The crowds were all singing, egged on by the bands
And then it was here – we witnessed ‘The Kiss’
Great cheers of excitement, a day not to miss!
The children were roaring and drenched all way through
But they’d seen ‘Torch Relay’ and loved it – we knew
They’d re-live that moment in years over to come
And tell all their Grandkids – they’d seen the great run

Shelties In Art

Oil On Canvas Painting By Janet Swannell

I live in Nottingham (UK) with my husband David and two Old English Sheepdogs (Hugo and Josie).

I have shown and bred Old English Sheepdogs for the past thirty years and it was because of a very handsome OES boy that I started painting.

I started to take my art seriously approximately four years ago when we moved back from Spain to Nottingham.

I recently joined a local Art group where I met 'Sheltie Show People' and became intrigued by their dog's colouring and markings. I really enjoy painting them as their characters really show through.

Best Of the Best Sevens Challenge Nz & Aust Ch Beauideal Devil In Dskyz

The Sevens Challenge is the 2nd biggest show in New Zealand as the prelude to the National Show. Each of the seven groups had their own show and Devil won BIS at the Working Show. The next day all the BIS winners competed, as well as in show age group winners with Pat Thomas judging, and Devil won Best of the Best - the overall award! I understand no Shetland Sheepdog has ever won BIS at the runnerup show to the NZ National (or at the National) before.

A VERY SPECIAL THERAPY DOG

Continuing Bec's Amazing Stories

Pictures: By Kind Permission of CURE Childhood Cancer Association.
Bec

(This is a son of our CH Ricky that we co bred with Gayle Rizzo Storyland's Royal Dream. He was born on my mother's birthday two months after she died. He weighed 3 oz and was all but dead the first twelve hours. Dr Becky gave him fluids etc, and saved his life. We named the litter after 'It's a Wonderful Life', since it was New Year. Bec's name here was George Bailey.

He found his home with Alyce Hahn of Rochester, NY who wanted another pup to train as a therapy dog to work at the local hospital and schools. He was registered as a therapy dog a day after his first birthday.

Below are stories of his patient visits; he really does have that "angel" quality. Kathy Fisher Rhoads. USA)

Our First Visit To The Intensive Care Unit:

My daughter called me to ask if I were going to the hospital per usual that day. Her best friend's Mom had been in the intensive care unit for weeks, dying of mesothelioma. Her daughter thought that her Mom might benefit from a visit from Bec (because she loves dogs). Problem is that we are not allowed up there. So I made a few calls and two hours later, we were cleared and visiting.

It was the FIRST time they had allowed a team up there, so we were mobbed by the staff when we entered. I'm sure it's stressful and usually very sad up there, so Bouncy Boy was a welcome diversion for the nurses and Doctors (who got right down on the floor with him).

Bec did so well with the patient. She was not conscious BUT every time he kissed her hand, she stirred, so you KNOW she was aware of his presence. He lay down and put his head near her - I think he was fascinated by the oxygen and labored breathing. And, I'm sure he could smell that she was dying. He is totally different when death is present. He KNOWS. I just let him do his thing knowing that he is 'tuned in'. The family was SO pleased that the Mom, a dog person, had one last visit and dog kiss. She died the next day.

Bec Visited An Infant Who Was Having Seizures, Was Blind And Deaf.

The Doctor thought that perhaps the presence of a dog beside her would calm her - she had been having a rough day, and therefore, so was her Mom.

So, I placed Bec beside her in the crib, and he quietly lay down, touching her with his body. She immediately sensed him and turned toward him. We guided her hands so she could feel his fur and she reacted with a calm that made her Mom smile from ear to ear. Her Mom later told me that was the only time all day that her daughter had been tranquil.

The STARE:

We visited a gentleman of about 40 in palliative care who was extremely weak and could only speak in a whisper. I asked if he wanted to just see the dog, or if he wanted to touch the dog, or have the dog beside him in bed. He motioned us over and indicated that he wanted Bec right beside him in bed. So, I placed Bec in the bed and the man began petting him, obviously enjoying the sensation of touching my dog, I noticed that Bec moved closer to the man, and sat up as tall as he could so that he was looking directly into his eyes, and then Bec began staring. The man immediately noticed Bec's gaze and the two of them sat there, completely transfixed, staring into each other's eyes. There wasn't a spoken word exchanged but they were communicating on level that meant more! Every time I see Bec do that, I just watch in amazement at my dog KNOWING exactly what the patient needs. I don't know what they said to each other, but it was magical!

Making the Connection:

We have been visiting a local university for a year now; they asked a group of us to come during examination weeks as a stress reliever for the students. We usually see about 300 kids in two hours. It is a spectacular visit- one of our favorites because we are dealing with young adults, in a relaxed atmosphere (not having to worry about watching the people who are interacting with our dogs). The students get right on the floor, talk to the dogs, hug the dogs, and just SMELL the dogs. For both dogs and humans, what could be better?

At the first visit, I noticed a young man standing about 20 feet away, just staring at Bec. I was busy talking to the students who had gathered around us to visit, so I continued on and didn't pay any more attention to him until, about a half hour later, I noticed that he had moved slightly closer to us. He didn't seem to want to talk or approach us, so we went about our visits. About a half hour later, the young man made his way close enough that I could ask if he wanted to meet Bec and pet him. He nodded yes and sat down beside Bec, who never misses an opportunity to say hi. So they sat on the floor together, in the midst of a couple hundred other students, he not saying a word, but petting Bec non-stop. Bec returned the favor by sitting as close as he possibly could, and staring right into his eyes. The young man didn't say a word, but the look in his eyes was priceless. He had a huge smile on his face and I knew that he and Bec were connecting. I told him all about Bec, and tried to engage him in a conversation. His words were slow in coming and he spoke very softly, but I soon learned that he had a Sheltie at home and missed her terribly. Aha! That's the way into his heart- the dog. He spent about a half hour sitting next to Bec, not making eye contact with the other students, but focused totally on his new best friend. By his demeanour, I knew he had some form of autism, and that life for him was a constant struggle.

It took him the better part of an hour to approach us, but he did it and was in his glory! He asked when we would be visiting again, and promised to come see us.

About 6 weeks later, we were at the university again, and there he was, waiting for us. He didn't waste any time, he came over and I introduced him to my first therapy dog, Eile. I asked him a little more about his Sheltie, and he smiled as he described her. Then he pulled out a photo album and proudly showed me his dog pictures. He was animated and happy. (His faculty counselor told me how amazed she was seeing him interacting with the dog.) As we ended our visit, I gave him photo business cards of both Eile and Bec.

So for the rest of the school year, every time we visited, he was there. On the last visit of the year, we chatted about his studies and the upcoming trip home for the summer; he promised he would take new photos of his beloved dog to show me when we returned for the fall semester.

As he was about to leave, I asked him if he wanted a picture of my dogs, and he smiled. Then he pulled out his wallet and there, beside his family and his own dog, were the business cards I had given him at the beginning of the year. It doesn't get any better than that!
